

"There are many great resources online, but there is nothing like walking into a room full of parents wearing their little ones and being able to learn, make friends, and work together to build a community."

Babywearing 101

Presented in partnership with Babywearing International of Greater Boston

Saturday, February 24, 10:00-11:30am, FREE

Lowell General Hospital, Saints Campus, First Floor Conference Room
One Hospital Drive, Lowell, MA

This program will highlight and demonstrate some of the basic carrier types and general safety information. Attendees have the opportunity to work with program volunteers as they assist one-on-one and in small groups.

Light refreshments will be provided. Attendees may try on carriers during the program and are also invited to bring their own carriers from home.

About Babywearing International (BWI) of Greater Boston:

BWI of Greater Boston is an all-volunteer 501(c)3 non-profit serving families in the Boston metro and surrounding suburban area offering education and support to parents and caregivers wishing to carry babies and small children in soft, wearable carriers. BWI holds at least three meetings each month, open to the public and totally free to attend, in order to teach people how to wear their babies comfortably and safely.
